INDEX TO THE DETAILED TABLES

REPORT.

Registrar-General's Office,
Melbourne, 13th August, 1863.

SIR,

I have the honor to present herewith, for the purpose of being laid before Parliament, the third part of the Census Returns, viz., "The Birthplaces of the People."

Birthplaces of the people.

2. A general summary of the birthplaces was published in the Government Gazette as far back as the 23rd May, 1862, when the public was placed in possession of the gross results. The tables now given comprise all necessary further detail.

General Summary published in May 1862.

3. The following tables will be found in the present returns:—

Summary of contents of the tables.

I.—The number of British and Foreign subjects in each county and pastoral district and in the entire colony.

II.—The number of persons of different birthplaces living in Victoria at the various Census periods, and the numerical and proportionate increase or diminution of each nationality during the interval between those periods.

III.—The number of persons of both sexes living in Victoria in 1854, 1857, and 1861, and the numerical and proportionate increase or diminution of each nationality during the interval between each of those periods.

IV.—The numbers and proportions per cent. to the total population of persons of different birthplaces at the five last Census periods.

V.—The numbers and proportions per cent. to their respective totals of persons of both sexes of different birthplaces at the three last Census periods.

VI.—The numbers and proportions per cent. to their respective totals of persons of both sexes of different birthplaces living in the colony, and in the corporate towns and municipalities.

VII.—The numbers and proportions per cent. to their respective totals of persons of both sexes of different birthplaces living on the gold fields.

VIII.—The birthplaces of persons of both sexes living in each county and pastoral district.

IX.—The birthplaces of persons of both sexes living in each electoral province.

X.—The birthplaces of persons of both sexes living in each electoral district.

XI.—The birthplaces of persons of both sexes living in each corporate town and municipality.

XII.—The birthplaces of persons of both sexes living on the gold fields in each mining district.

XIII.—The birthplaces of persons of both sexes living in the parishes, townships, and principal places situated within each county and pastoral district.

4. The population of Victoria, subject, as it is, to constant increase by immigration from all parts of the world, is necessarily one of mixed nationality, and it is, for many reasons, a matter of importance, as well as of interest, to ascertain its component parts.

Population of Victoria is of mixed nationality.

British and Foreign subjects.

5. The first and grand division naturally appears to be into British and Foreign subjects. This is given in Table I. for the colony and for each county and district. It thus appears that out of 540,322 inhabitants enumerated on the 7th April, 1861, 492,403 were returned as British subjects, 46,787 as Foreign subjects, and in 1,132 instances the return was incomplete and the nationality indistinguishable.

Relative proportions of British and Foreign subjects.

6. Excluding the latter, it will be seen that returns of the nationality of 539,190 persons were obtained, and that 91·32 per cent., or ten-elevenths, of these were British subjects, and that 8·68 per cent. of the remaining eleventh were foreigners.

British subjects of what they consist.

7. Of the British subjects the first demanding notice are the Australian born. These numbered 158,000, of which 138,000 were natives of Victoria. The Victorians by birth amounted to rather more than a fourth of the population of the colony, and the natives of all the Australian colonies, including New Zealand, to 29 per cent. of its inhabitants. Those born in England numbered 169,586, or nearly a third of the total population.—Those born in Wales numbered 6,055, or about 1 per cent.—The Scotch amounted to 60,701, or about a ninth.—The Irish to 87,160, or about a sixth.—Those born in British colonies other than Australian numbered 3,490, or one in every 154 of the population.—The East Indians of British extraction numbered 654, or one in every 833; and the East Indians belonging to the native races numbered 204, or one in every 2,500 living.

Born at sea, unspecified, &c.

8. To these may be added those born at sea, which numbered 1,840 of both sexes, or one in every 294 of the population.—Those whose place of nativity was not specified in the schedules, but who, having British names, may fairly be considered as British subjects, amounting to 663, or one in every 835 living; and British subjects not born in British possessions, numbering 1,179, or one in every 455 of the inhabitants of the colony.

Relative proportions of natives of various British possessions.

9. The Australian born were 32 per cent. of the British subjects in the colony, the English amounted to nearly 35 per cent., the Welsh to little more than 1 per cent., the Scotch to 12 per cent., the Irish to 18 per cent., and the residue, including the natives of British colonies other than Australian, the East Indians, those born at sea, the unspecified, with British names, and those of British parentage not born in British possessions, to nearly 2 per cent.

Foreigners of what nationalities they consist.

10. Of foreigners by far the largest number were Chinese. These amounted to 24,732, or one in every 22 of the population. The German colonists numbered 10,418, or one in every 52 living. The Americans 2,554, or one in every 213. Nearly 7,000 persons belonged to other European countries, and 406 to other countries out of Europe. Forty persons, whose names in the schedules appeared to be foreign, but respecting whom the column of birthplace contained no information, were also probably aliens, and have been classed as such.

Relative proportions of Foreign nationalities.

11. The Chinese amounted to 53 per cent. of the foreigners settled in Victoria, the Germans to 22½ per cent., the Americans to 5½ per cent., the French to 3 per cent., and the residue to 16 per cent.

Unknown allegiance.

12. The persons of unknown allegiance consist of 3,341 who had changed their places of abode during the interval between the depositing and taking up of the schedules, and from whom accordingly no particulars could be obtained, and of 1,094 who, although they found a place in schedules, had not only no entry in the "Birthplace" column, but had not even their names mentioned, and consequently there was no clue whatever to distinguish their nationality.

Relative proportions of the sexes of the various nationalities

13. As regards the sexes, the greatest equality existed between the Victorian born, of which the numbers were 69,389 males and 68,686 females, or about 99 females to every 100 males; the natives of other Australian Colonies come next in order, the proportion being 92 females to 100 males; then the Irish with 85 females to 100 males; the Scotch with 64; the English with 57; the Anglo-East Indians with 50; the Welsh with 40; the natives of British Colonies not Australian with 36; the Germans with 28; the French with 22; the natives of the United States with 16; the East Indians of Oriental extraction with 9; and the natives of "other European countries" with 6 females to every 100 males. By far the greatest disparity was between the Chinese, of which there were only eight females to 24,724 males, or less than one female to every 3,000 males.

14. The British subjects, taken as a whole, were in the proportion of 74 females to 100 males, and the foreigners (leaving out the Chinese) were in the proportion of 18 females to 100 males. It was stated, in the report to the first part of the Census, that of the total population the relation was 65 females to 100 males, or, in other words, it was 154 males to every 100 females.

Relative proportions of the sexes of British subjects and Foreigners.

15. The nationality of the population living in the colony, the corporate towns and municipalities, and in the mining districts is given in Tables VI. and VII., by which it appears that whilst in the whole of Victoria, as has been already stated, 91 per cent. were British and 9 per cent. were foreign subjects; of the urban population 94 per cent. were British and 6 per cent. were foreigners, and on the gold fields only 83½ per cent. were British subjects and as many as 16½ per cent. were foreigners. This large proportion of foreigners on the gold fields is accounted for principally by the fact that 23,733 Chinese, out of 24,732 in the colony, were resident in the mining districts.

Nationality of persons living in the colony, the municipalities, and the mining districts.

16. The growth of the native born population forms an interesting subject for examination. It appears that in 1846, 7,583 individuals, or 23 per cent. of the population, were Australian born; but in 1851, while the whole population had increased 135 per cent., the colonial born had increased 170 per cent., and was in the proportion of nearly 27 per cent. to the population. In the interval between 1851 and 1854, the children of the soil had increased 101 per cent., but the accession of population from without had been so great as to cause the total population to increase much faster, or at the rate of 206 per cent. The native Australians had thus become reduced to 17 per cent. of the total. In the next interval the Australian born had increased 106 per cent., whereas the increase of the whole population was only 73 per cent.; and between 1857 and the present Census those born in the colonies had increased 158 per cent., and now amount to 29 per cent. of the population.

Growth of the native Australian population.

The nationalities which diminished in our population between the Censuses of 1857 and 1861 were the Indians of both European and Asiatic origin, the former by 8, the latter by 69; the French by 158, the Americans by 356, the Chinese by 692, and the natives of other foreign countries by 6. All the other nationalities which found place in the returns at the former period showed more or less increase at the latter.

Nationalities showing diminution since 1857.

17. The tables from II. to V. afford facilities for the comparison of the numbers of persons of different birthplaces resident in the colony at all the various Censuses. The remaining tables are chiefly devoted to showing the native countries of persons in different parts of the colony, and will be found to extend their details into all cognate divisions.

Tables indicated.

18. I trust that these few remarks upon the subject of the birthplaces will be found sufficient to explain the general features of this part of the Census returns.

Conclusion.

I have the honor to be,

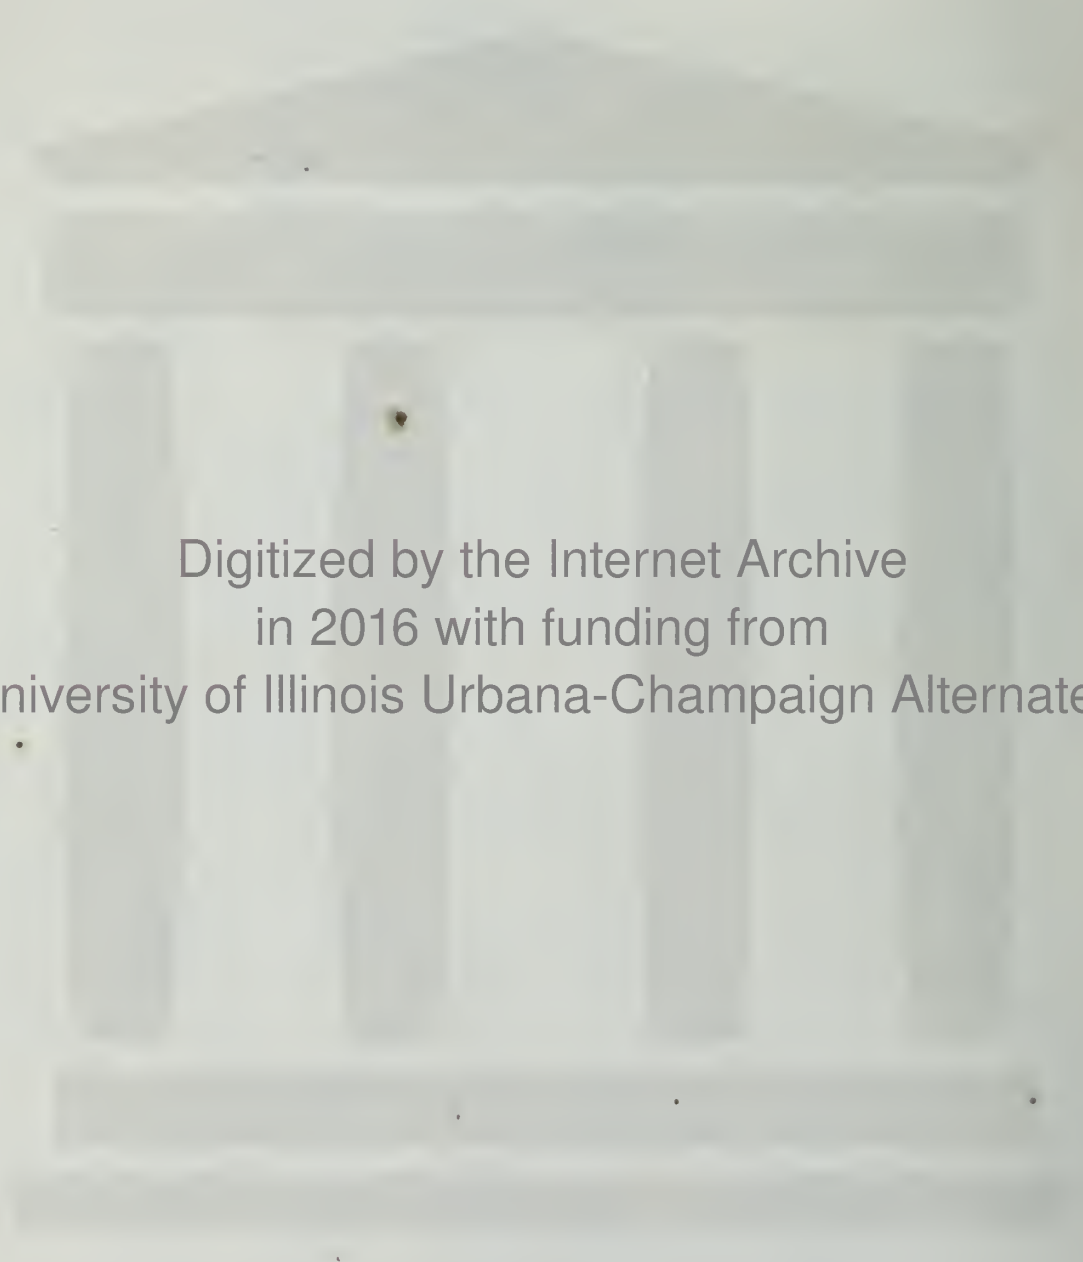

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM HENRY ARCHER,

Registrar-General.

The Honorable the Chief Secretary,
Melbourne.

SUMMARY TABLES

AND

TABULAR RESULTS.

CENSUS OF VICTORIA, 1861.

BIRTHPLACES OF THE PEOPLE.

NOTE.—In some of the Counties and Districts the numbers born in China do not exactly agree with the numbers of Chinese given in the first part of the Census (Inhabitants and Houses). The present return being the result of a subsequent and more careful investigation of the schedules, is the more accurate of the two. The gross numbers of Chinese in the Colony correspond in both instances; the differences therefore are simply transpositions, and have arisen from some confusion in the boundaries of the various Counties and Districts.
